IT CLOTHING

REVERSE GEAR INC. has introduced new unique products for the 'bent community. For folks that don't want to cycling jerseys, REVERSE GEAR has a jersey that looks like a polo shirt but still has the same front-zipped pockets to keep valuables safe while riding. Café tops look smart both while riding and when riding for museums, theatres, markets and fairs. These tops are made from the same technical wicking fabrics as other REVERSE GEAR jerseys. This new line comes in both women's and men's polo-styles and in light (cappuccino and café latte for visibility) or dark (espresso which doesn't show the grease) colors.

REVERSE GEAR has also created the Hollywood or Jarrah – which is claimed to be better than a t-shirt because the unique body-mapping and technical fabrics keep you cooler. This jersey features hidden zippered pockets in the side seams so your valuables stay close at hand, in a very comfortable location.

REVERSE GEAR INC. is the creator of REVERSE GEARTM – a full range of North American made recumbent-specific cycle clothing – for 'bents by bents. ## HASE KLIMAX E-TRIKE

The German bike manufacturer Hase Spezialräder is introducing its KLIMAX e-trike, featuring comfort and efficiency: The new e-trike has a foldable fairing climate protector. Environmental protection and CO2-free mobility should be fun in any weather. At least that's what the people at Hase Spezialräder believe. At the start of Eurobike 2010 (September 4th), Hase will be launching "Project KLIMAX" with the introduction of the KLIMAX 2K. Based on the cult trike Kettwiesel, a trike which has always been an all-rounder for touring and fun tracks.
